THE MINISTER OF HEALTH AND FAMILY WELFARE (DR. C. P. THAKUR): (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Upto 31st March, 1996, the achievements of Family Welfare Programme were assessed on the basis of the targets given from above for individual contraceptives. This led to a situation where the achievements of contraceptives targets had become ends in themselves. This target, system was started with the concepts that the achievement of contraceptive target would definitely lead to decrease in birth rate and subsequently in decrease in population. However, over the years it was realized that in the target system there were many drawbacks. For instance, users preference in choosing contraceptive was not reflected: due to non-availability of required contraceptives for the users, targets were not realized; there was no system of feed back on contraceptives needs- of users and thus the quality of services to the beneficiaries did not receive due attention.

(c) Currently, six Area Projects are being implemented in the selected Districts/Cities of 13 States including Delhi at a total cost of Rs. 1194.78 crores with the financial assistance from World Bank, DANIDA, DFID (UK), UNFPA and German Government. In addition, under the World Bank Assisted RCH programme, 24 RCH Sub-project (17 Districts and 7 Cities) are under implementation in 17 States at a total cost of Rs. 283.88 crores for a period of five years since October, 1997.

The National Population Policy, 2000 adopted by the Government in February, 2000 envisages strengthening and energizing the Family Welfare services in the four States of Bihar, M.P., Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh including all other States.

An Empowered Action Group has been constituted within the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, for preparing area specific programmes with special emphasis on States including these States, which are lagging behind in population control.
